SHOT DEAD IN FIGHT WITH SAFE ROBBERS.

JACKSON, Mich., March 19.-Policeman Fred Booth, aged thirty-five years, was shot dead to-day while a party of officers were trying to arrest three men suspected of having robbed the safe in suspected of having robbed the safe in the post-fifice at Brooklyn, fourteen miles from here. Word was received here early to-day that the post-office had been robbed at Brooklyn and $200 in money and $100 in etamps stolen.

Later the police located three suspicious fooking men in the neighborhood of the Michigan Central shops. Sheriff Parrish, Policeman Booth and two other officers tried to round them up, and in a fight that followed Booth was killed. The men then escaped, and officers are pursuing them.

The Tenderloin's Grand Duke.

By Walter A. Sinclair.

(Deputy Waldo is leading the latest Tenderloin crusade.-News Item.) The czars have come, the czars have reigned, the czars have gone to join The other czars who came to rule the broiling Tenderloin. From Williams down to Hodgins we have had a line of czars-The Tenderloin's stern rulers who have worn the captain's bars. But now, to be like Russia (where the Czar consults a *pook), They're using Rhino Waldo as the Tenderloin's Grand Duke.

You might suppose, to size his clothes, that one so young and rich Would be the one to have the fun and job of czarovitch (Though Brother Dooley was the only one to hold that job). But Waldo is the man to "shoo" the precinct's mujik mob. Which same they're throwing out of doors and letting it be known That Grand Duke Rhino Waldo is "the pow'r behind the thrown.

Oh, czars have ruled and czars have fooled, and maybe taken graft And czars have said the "lid" was on while all the precinct laughed The czars who went with good intent have ruled their little day; All kinds of czars have tried their hands and sadly moved away. No bombs, but balms, for itching palms the job lost on a fluke If czars can rule, can mujiks fool the Tenderloin's Grand Duke?
